MESSAGE

I am happy to know that Anti-Corruption Intelligence Committee, a Bhubaneswar based Anti-Corruption Civil Society, is going to organise the National Seminar on 10th July, 2022 and Publish a Souvenir on the occasion.

Combating against corruption is one of the most important factors for establishing Good Governance. The fight against corruption is a long-term process, which requires deep structural changes to a country's institutions, its legal framework and its culture. A successful anti-corruption strategy must have a free platform to voice public opinion and report cases of corruption, an effective and politically neutral mechanism to investigate and prosecute corruption; and a reliable judicial process to punish wrongdoing when it is proved. Civil society organisations' contributions range from awareness-raising and prevention campaigns to participation in policy formation and monitoring of the implementation of anti-corruption strategies and legislation. Substantial interventions of Civil Societies have far-reaching impact on the overall mindset and character building of the future generation. Hence, the role of civil society is an essential component to anti-corruption success.

I convey my best wishes to the members of the Society along with delegates participating in the National Seminar and publication of the Souvenir all success.

Dear Sir,

Date:

CYBER SECURITY DEPT.

In today's world where weaknesses in existing infra & super and people and business are expanding. Network communications and network based applications are rapidly increasing. There is potential use of technology and technology products. The very low priority is given to security of these networks and systems connected to the networks. This negligence has resulted in vulnerable (weak) networks and systems and thereby high risks of cyber attacks. Many organisations had to suffer huge losses amounting to millions because of cyber attacks. This is a serious & critical global problem.

"ANTI CORRUPTION INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE" in the first instance is asking the Govt and the private to bring initiatives to prevent major organisations to fall victim to the attack. This would be achieved by 3 major steps taken by "ACI" team.

- 1) ONE DAY AUDIT PROGRAMME IN THE ORGANISATION
- 2) CYBER POLICY REGARDING THE WEAKNESS POLICY IN RISK, THE ALERT
- 3) AWARENESS AND IMPLEMENTATION FOR BETTERMANLY OF THE ORGANISATION

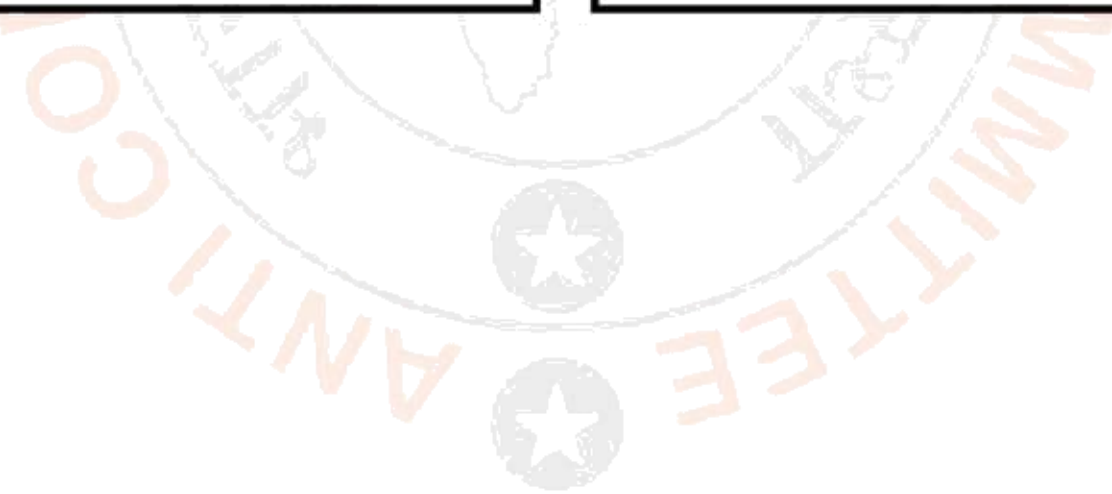

The Audit Programme and Consultation would be done by well qualified and experienced

INFO SECURE AUDITORS, who is well equipped for it, and the solution would be based on according to the ISO 27001 STANDARDS which are globally accepted and recommended for each and every organisation for IT SECURITY.

We are very pleased to inform "ACI" members who are serving their business organisations to take benefit of this valuable & unique service which is sponsored & provided by

"ANTI CORRUPTION INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE"

All are requested to send the details regarding the Company Name & Address details of business, if website address submitted then to be given by Company for audit programme.

Silver Jubilee Celebration (25 Years) of Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee September 29, 2024

2. Introduction about the Organization and Its 25 Years of Service

The Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee (ACIC) was founded in 1999 with the mission of combating corruption and promoting transparency, integrity, and accountability within society. Over the last 25 years, ACIC has expanded its focus to include a variety of community development and welfare initiatives, particularly in health care, education, and public awareness campaigns. The organization has worked tirelessly towards improving the quality of life for underserved populations, and its Silver Jubilee celebration marks a significant milestone in its ongoing commitment to public service.

As part of the celebrations, the ACIC chose to host a Free Eye Checkup Camp, a reflection of its broader community engagement efforts. The event also highlighted ACIC's ongoing dedication to the well-being of vulnerable populations in the region.

1. Executive Summary

The Free Eye Checkup Camp organized by the Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee (ACIC) on September 29, 2024, as part of its Silver Jubilee celebration, was a resounding success. The camp aimed to provide free eye checkups and vision care to underserved members of the Taloja community. The event not only served as a platform for addressing eye health concerns but also as a means to engage the community in broader health and wellness initiatives. Medical professionals, volunteers, and supporting staff came together to provide comprehensive eye care services to over 300 individuals, diagnosing various eye conditions and distributing medications and spectacles to those in need.

भारतीय भ्रष्टाचार निवारण संस्थान यांच्या वतीने कुर्ला येथे विद्यार्थ्यांना शालेय साहित्य बेग वाटप संपन्न

भारतीय भ्रष्टाचार निवृत्त संस्थान (Anti-Corruption Intelligence Committee - ACIC) च्या वतीने विद्यार्थ्यांना शैक्षणिक मदत मिळावी आणि त्यांना सक्षम बनवावे या उद्देशाने एक अत्यंत महत्त्वपूर्ण उपक्रम हाती घेण्यात आला आहे. शनिवार, १९ जुलै २०२५ रोजी, श्री माडगे महाराज विद्यालय, न्यू मिल रोड, कुर्ला (पश्चिम), मुंबई येथे सायंकाळी ०५:०० वाजता शालेय साहित्य वाटप कार्यक्रम पार पडला. या सामाजिक उपक्रमांतर्गत, आर्थिकदृष्ट्या दुर्बल पाश्चिमीतील विद्यार्थ्यांना शालेय बॅग, पुस्तके व आवश्यक स्टेशनरी वस्तू किराचीत करण्यात आल्या. शिक्षणाच्या मूलभूत साधनांमध्ये असलेली असमानता दूर करण्याच्या आमच्या ध्येयाचा हा एक भाग आहे.

आम्हाला आनंदाने सांगायचे वाटते की या उपक्रमासाठी CRYATON कंपनीने उदारतेने शालेय बॅग पुरवल्या असून, खालील मान्यवर प्रायोजकांनी उपक्रमाला भरघोस पाठिंबा दिला आहे: लायन्स क्लब ऑफ मुंबई स्टार मा. श्री. संतोष भामरे सर तसेच इतर अनेक उदार मनाचे दात्यांचे सहकार्ये या उपक्रमाची आस्थाणी व यशस्वी अंमलबजावणी करण्यात मोलाचे योगदान दिलेल्या सर्व एसीआयसी सदस्यांचे मनःपूर्वक आभार. स्थानिक पत्रकार, मान्यवर, सामाजिक कार्यकर्ते आणि नागरिकांनी या उपक्रमात सहभाग घेऊन समाजात शिक्षणप्रेम आणि सकारात्मक परिवर्तनाचे बीज रोवावे, असे आम्ही आवाहन करतो.

इस अवसर पर ट्रैफिक पुलिस के वरिष्ठ पुलिस निरीक्षक श्री प्रकाश सकपाल सर ने ट्रैफिक पुलिस कर्मियों को स्वास्थ्य एवं वेलनेस के महत्व के विषय में मार्गदर्शन प्रदान किया।

नवी मुंबई टीम द्वारा डी. वाई. पाटिल अस्पताल के सभी डॉक्टरों एवं वरिष्ठ पुलिस निरीक्षक श्री प्रकाश सकपाल सर को ट्रॉफी प्रदान कर सम्मानित किया गया। इसके साथ ही ट्रैफिक पुलिस विभाग एवं एंटी करप्शन इंटेलिजेंस कमेटी के सभी सदस्यों को श्री गणेश भगवान की एलईडी प्रतिमा भेंट स्वरूप प्रदान कर सम्मानित किया गया।

डी. वाई. पाटिल अस्पताल के डॉक्टरों द्वारा न केवल स्वास्थ्य जांच की गई, बल्कि आवश्यक दवाइयों भी निःशुल्क वितरित की गई।

शंकर ठक्कर ने महाराष्ट्र के उपमुख्यमंत्री अजित दादा पवार के दुखद निधन पर संस्थान की ओर से श्रद्धांजलि अर्पित की और डी वाय पाटील कॉलेज द्वारा किए गए सामाजिक एवं मानवीय सहयोग के लिए डी. वाई. पाटील कॉलेज

MESSAGE

Corruption remains one of the most serious threats to the moral, social, and economic fabric of our nation. It is not merely an administrative failure, but a deep-rooted social challenge that arises from dishonest practices silently accepted in everyday life. If we are to eliminate corruption, we must begin by confronting dishonesty in all its forms—openly, firmly, and collectively.

Dishonest practices such as misuse of authority, favoritism, manipulation of systems, false documentation, unethical conduct, and deliberate silence against wrongdoing are the breeding grounds of corruption. When such practices go unchecked, they weaken public trust, erode democratic values, and deprive citizens of justice and equality.

The Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee (ACIC) stands firm in its belief that the fight against corruption is not the responsibility of enforcement agencies alone. It is a shared national duty. While laws and institutions play a vital role, true change can only be achieved when honesty, transparency, accountability, and integrity become part of our daily conduct.

Education, awareness, and moral courage are essential weapons in this fight. Citizens must be empowered with knowledge of their rights and responsibilities, and encouraged to resist and report corruption. Whistleblowers, who show exceptional courage by exposing dishonest practices, deserve protection, respect, and societal support—not fear or isolation.

We also recognize the positive role of technology and digital governance in reducing corruption by increasing transparency and minimizing human discretion. However, technology must be guided by ethical intent and strong implementation to be truly effective.

Let us all take a firm pledge to reject dishonest practices, refuse shortcuts, and stand united against injustice. Every honest action strengthens our nation, and every courageous voice brings us closer to a corruption-free society.

Together, let us lead with honesty so that corruption has no place to survive.

The Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee (ACIC) was established in the year 1999 with a resolute commitment to promote integrity, transparency, and ethical governance in society. Since its inception, ACIC has functioned as a citizen-centric organization dedicated to combating corruption and dishonest practices through awareness, vigilance, and lawful action.

ACIC firmly believes that corruption is not merely an administrative failure but a deep-rooted social menace that weakens democratic institutions, erodes public trust, hampers economic development, and deprives citizens of their rightful services. The Committee works towards eliminating corruption by encouraging moral responsibility, public participation, and institutional accountability.

Vision of ACIC :

To create a society, where honesty is a way of life rather than an exception, and where citizens actively contribute to safeguard the democratic values. Our vision is to establish a disciplined, independent, and people-oriented platform that empowers citizens to raise their voices against corruption without fear, while strictly upholding the constitutional values of the country, the rule of law, and ethical governance. We strongly believed that corruption can be effectively addressed only when public awareness, moral courage, and responsible institutions work together in harmony.

Objectives of ACIC

The key objectives of the Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee are :

- To prevent and combat corruption through awareness, vigilance, and lawful means
- To promote transparency, integrity, and accountability in public and private institutions
- To educate citizens about their constitutional rights, duties, and anti-corruption laws
- To encourage ethical conduct in administration, governance, and social life
- To guide and support victims and whistleblowers of corruption through proper legal channels
- To strengthen democratic values by promoting active civic participation
- To act as a bridge between citizens and concerned authorities for lawful redressal of corruption-related issues

ACIC envisions a corruption-free, just, and accountable society where honesty is valued, public resources are protected, governance is transparent, and citizens actively participate in strengthening the nation.

With sincere regards

Citizens' Movement and Youth Power Against Dishonest Practices

Dr. Bipin Bihari Mishra
National Secretary
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee (ACIC)

The fight against corruption cannot be won by governments alone. It requires a citizens' movement driven by awareness, participation, and collective responsibility. Ordinary people suffer most from corruption in daily life—whether in hospitals, offices, educational institutions, or public services. Therefore, they are also the strongest force for change.

Youth play a particularly powerful role. They represent energy, creativity, and moral courage. By rejecting cheating, plagiarism, fake certificates, and bribery for jobs, young people establish a new ethical standard. Student groups and youth organizations can run campaigns, debates, street plays, and social media movements promoting honesty and transparency.

Citizens can use tools such as Right to Information, online grievance portals, public hearings, and social audits to question authorities. Community groups can monitor the implementation of welfare schemes, road construction, school facilities, and village development plans. When citizens actively ask questions, the fear of exposure discourages officials from engaging in corruption.

Media and digital platforms help connect voices across regions, transforming individual complaints into collective demands for justice. Civil society organizations and NGOs can provide legal assistance to victims of corruption and educate people about their rights.

Most importantly, every citizen must practice integrity in their own life, not giving bribes, not evading taxes, not misusing government facilities, and not supporting dishonest persons are simple but powerful actions. Social change begins when people say "No" to corruption in daily life, however small it may seem.

When youth power, citizen participation, ethical leadership, and strong institutions come together, corruption can no longer survive. A transparent, just, and equitable society then becomes not just a dream, but a reality.

Fighting Dishonest Practices Against Corruption

Dr. Ashutosh A. Tripathi
National Working President
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee (ACIC)

Corruption is one of the greatest challenges faced by any developing and developed nation alike. It weakens democratic institutions, erodes public trust, hampers economic growth, and deprives citizens of their basic rights. Dishonest practices—whether small or large—are the roots from which corruption grows. Therefore, fighting corruption begins with firmly confronting dishonesty at every level of society.

Dishonest practices are not limited to bribery alone. They include misuse of power, manipulation of systems, favoritism, false reporting, unethical conduct, and silence in the face of wrongdoing. When such practices become habitual, corruption turns into a culture rather than an exception. This is precisely what we, as responsible citizens, must refuse to accept.

The Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee (ACIC) believes that the fight against corruption is not the responsibility of authorities alone. It is a collective moral duty. Laws, rules, and enforcement agencies are essential, but they can succeed only when supported by strong ethical values and public participation. Transparency, accountability, and integrity must become the foundation of our personal and professional lives.

Education and awareness play a crucial role in this fight. From a young age, citizens must be taught the importance of honesty, fairness, and courage to speak the truth. When people understand their rights and duties, they become less vulnerable to exploitation and more confident in resisting corrupt demands.

Equally important is the protection and encouragement of whistleblowers—those brave individuals who expose corruption despite personal risk. Society must stand with them, not isolate them. Their courage is a powerful weapon against dishonest practices.

Technology and digital governance have also emerged as strong tools in reducing corruption by minimizing human discretion and increasing transparency. However, technology alone cannot eliminate corruption unless accompanied by ethical intent and strict implementation.

As the National Working President of ACIC, I firmly believe that corruption can be defeated when honesty becomes a habit, integrity becomes a value, and accountability becomes a norm. Each honest decision we make weakens corruption; each act of courage strengthens the nation.

Let us pledge to say no to dishonest practices, no to shortcuts, and no to silence in the face of injustice. Together, through awareness, action, and integrity, we can build a corruption-free society and a stronger, more just nation.

“ When honesty leads, corruption retreats.”

Corruption: A Threat to Justice and Society

Dr. Kishore Chandra Kar,
Sr. Adv.
President, Anti Corruption
Intelligence Committee, Odisha

God created man, and man created society. In order to live peacefully and harmoniously, human beings framed rules, regulations, and laws by which society would be governed and justice would be ensured for everyone. However, there are some people who try to gain benefits through wrongful means. They seek to obtain what they do not deserve, thereby breaking the very foundation of the justice system. This wrongful practice is known as corruption.

Corruption occurs at many levels and in almost all fields of administration. It arises from human greed, immorality, selfishness, and lack of ethical values. Instead of thinking that everyone should receive their due share and live with dignity, people often act in a manner that causes suffering to others. They forget that others, just like them, have a right to food, shelter, and justice.

In many cases, people bribe those in positions of power to obtain undue favours, enabling themselves to live luxurious lives while others are pushed into poverty and misery. On the other hand, those holding power and authority often do not hesitate to accept bribes. Driven by greed, they seek to accumulate wealth and become objects of admiration, displaying their riches through large bungalows and luxury vehicles. This unhealthy competition among corrupt individuals has become a disturbing trend in society.

Those who indulge in corruption lack conscience and concern for the common people who suffer due to deprivation of their rightful benefits under government schemes. While the corrupt enjoy the lion's share of privileges, the common people are left helpless. In such circumstances, even when the fault lies with corrupt individuals, the administration is blamed, and sometimes are even removed from power.

As corruption spreads, society weakens and the justice system struggles to function effectively. In such times, the judiciary plays a crucial role. It acts as the watchdog of society and the government, ensuring that justice prevails. The judiciary does not hesitate to take action even against powerful leaders, thereby upholding the rule of law.

Therefore, it is the responsibility of every citizen to join hands in eradicating corruption from society. Only through collective effort, moral integrity, and strict adherence to law can we build a just, fair, and corruption-free society.

Fighting Corruption: A Call for a Clean and Courageous India

Er. (Ln.) Bipin Bihari Nayak
General Secretary
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee, Odisha

Corruption is one of the greatest challenges facing modern society. It weakens democracy, damages public trust, slows development, and deepens inequality. When dishonest practices replace honesty, merit is ignored, and justice is delayed, the very foundation of a nation begins to shake.

Youth have a crucial role in building a corruption-free nation. Young minds are energetic, idealistic, and courageous. They are not yet trapped in unhealthy systems and habits. If youth choose integrity over shortcuts, honesty over bribery, and service over selfishness, they can transform society. Educational institutions must promote ethical values, transparency, and civic responsibility alongside academic excellence. Students must be encouraged to say no to cheating, fake certificates, and unfair advantages, as corruption often begins with small dishonest acts.

Technology has become a powerful weapon against corruption. Digital payments, online services, direct benefit transfers, CCTV monitoring, RTI platforms, and transparent tender systems have reduced human interference and opportunities for manipulation. E-governance brings speed, accountability, and openness to public services. However, technology alone is not enough. Honest leadership, strong institutions, and public vigilance are equally important.

Corruption does not disappear overnight. It requires continuous effort, courage, and cooperation. Each citizen must ask: Am I part of the problem, or am I part of the solution? Even small acts of honesty—refusing a bribe, reporting wrongdoing, following rules, helping others without expectation—create ripples of change. When millions choose integrity, corruption loses its ground.

Fighting Dishonest Practices Against Corruption

“Be the change that you wish to see in the world.” - Mahatma Gandhi

Corruption is one of the biggest challenges that slows down Nation’s growth and damages public trust in the system. It appears in many forms such as bribery in many places, misuse of public funds, favoritism in jobs and contracts, delay of services without bribes. From getting basic documents to receiving welfare benefits, many citizens are forced to pay bribes just to access their rightful services. This not only weakens democracy but also encourages injustice and inequality in society. The people who suffer the most due to corruption are poor families, daily wage workers, small farmers, students, and honest taxpayers. When money meant for schools, hospitals, roads, and employment schemes is stolen, it is the common people who lose opportunities for a better life. Corruption also affects young people by reducing fair job chances and lowering faith in hard work and merit. Therefore, fighting corruption is not just about punishing the guilty, but about protecting the future of millions and building a stronger, fairer Country for everyone.

Facts and Real-Life Examples of Corruption in Society

Corruption is not just a topic of discussion but a reality that affects daily life. According to Transparency International’s Corruption Perceptions Index, showing that corruption is still a serious concern. Cases like and irregularities in public recruitment exams have shown how large amounts of public money can be misused by powerful person. On a smaller level, many citizens face corruption while applying for their genuine services, where bribes are sometimes demanded to speed up the process.

Another major area of corruption is in welfare schemes. Money meant for poor families under schemes programs has, in some cases, been diverted or delayed due to false records and middlemen. This directly harms the people who depend on these schemes for survival and education. Such practices increase poverty and widen the gap between rich and poor.

Government Steps to Fight Corruption

The Government has taken several steps to reduce corruption and increase transparency. The Right to Information (RTI) Act allows citizens to ask questions about government work and spending. Digital India initiatives, such as online applications, direct benefit transfer (DBT), and Aadhaar-linked payments, have reduced human interference and middlemen, helping benefits reach people directly. Institutions like the Central Vigilance Commission (CVC) and Lokpal have been created to investigate corruption cases against public officials. Fast-track courts and stricter laws for economic offences are also aimed at speeding up justice. However, effective implementation and honest officials are equally important to make these systems work properly.

Role of Society and Citizens

Society plays a very important role in fighting corruption. Citizens must refuse to give bribes and should report corrupt practices through official complaint portals and helplines. Awareness campaigns in schools and colleges can build strong moral values among youth, teaching them that success should come through hard work, not shortcuts. When people stay silent, corruption grows stronger, but when society stands united, corrupt systems begin to break.

Impact of Technology in Fighting Corruption

Technology has played a major role in reducing corruption by increasing transparency and limiting direct contact between officials and citizens. Online services have reduced the need to visit offices repeatedly, where bribes were earlier demanded to speed up work. With online tracking systems, people can now check the status of their applications, making it harder for officials to delay files without reason. The introduction of Direct Benefit Transfer (DBT) has reduced the role of middlemen and fake beneficiaries. Digital payment systems like UPI and online banking also reduce cash transactions, making it easier to trace money and prevent illegal payments like E-procurement portals.

Technology has also empowered citizens. Mobile apps, grievance portals, and RTI online platforms allow people to report corruption and seek information without fear or influence. Social media has helped expose scams quickly and bring public attention to unfair practices. However, technology must be supported by digital literacy and strong cyber security to ensure that these systems are not misused.

Overall, technology acts as a bridge between honest co-ordination and empowered citizens, making corruption more difficult and transparency more achievable.

“The future of a nation is not written by laws alone, but by the courage of its citizens to stand for what is right.”

Fighting corruption it is the moral responsibility of every citizen. Every time we refuse to pay a bribe, report wrongdoing, or choose honesty over convenience, we protect the dreams of millions who depend on fair systems for education, healthcare, and employment. A corruption-free environment means more opportunities for the poor, safer streets for women, better schools for children, and dignity for honest workers.

“When honest people remain silent, corruption becomes powerful.”

If we want a stronger, self-reliant, and truly developed Nation, we must begin with ourselves. Small steps taken by millions of citizens can create a big change. Let us raise our voices, support transparency, and teach future generations that integrity is not a weakness but the greatest strength of a nation. Only then can we proudly say that we are building not just a growing economy, but a just and honest society.

Our Responsibility for a Corruption-Free Nation as the Secretary Administration, Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee, Odisha State, I firmly believe that corruption can be defeated when honesty becomes a habit, integrity becomes a value, and accountability becomes a norm.

Corruption is one of the biggest challenges to social justice and national development. It weakens institutions, reduces public trust, and prevents the fair use of resources meant for the welfare of citizens. When corruption spreads, the poor and honest people suffer the most.

To fight corruption, awareness, strong laws, transparent systems, and ethical leadership are essential. Youth participation, community monitoring, and responsible media also play a major role in exposing wrongdoing and promoting honesty. By choosing integrity in our daily actions and standing against injustice, we can build a cleaner, fairer, and more progressive society for future generations.

Anti-Corruption Intelligence Committee's Statewide Awareness in Odisha

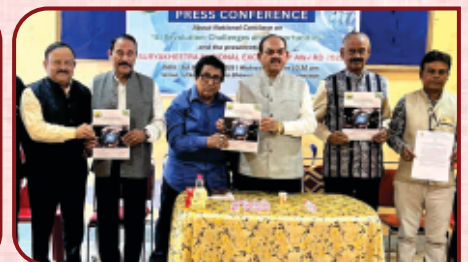

Dr. Ashok Kumar Mohapatra
Vice President
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee, Odisha

The Anti-Corruption Intelligence Committee (ACIC) have to launch a landmark initiative to visit every block and rural area across Odisha with the aim of building a corruption-free society through awareness, education, and citizen participation. Recognizing that corruption affects the grassroots the most, ACIC is taking its mission directly to villages, panchayats, schools, markets, and community spaces to educate people about their rights, duties, and the importance of transparency in public life.

Through block-level meetings, village workshops, street plays, seminars, poster campaigns, and interactive sessions, ACIC volunteers and officials are spreading awareness on how to identify corrupt practices, refuse bribes, and report wrongdoing safely and responsibly. Special focus is being given to empowering common citizens, farmers, women, youth groups, and self-help groups so that they can confidently demand fair services and accountable governance.

This statewide movement is not only about exposing corruption but also about promoting integrity, ethical values, and good administration, by connecting with people at the grassroots, ACIC aims to strengthen democracy, restore public trust in institutions, and create a culture of honesty and responsibility. The Committee's vision is clear — a transparent state where development reaches every citizen without discrimination, and justice, integrity, and accountability become the guiding principles of public life.

Eradicating Corruption: Building a Transparent Nation

Ms. Namita Manjari Ray
Educationist
Govt. Boy's High School,
Unit-8, Bhubaneswar

"The strength of a nation lies in the honesty of its people."

Corruption remains one of the major obstacles preventing Nation from achieving its full potential. It weakens public faith, slows economic growth, and creates unfair advantages for a few while harming the majority. Corruption exists in many forms such as paying bribes for any kind of approvals, manipulation in recruitment and promotions, misuse of public money, favoritism in contracts, and unnecessary delays in providing essential services unless extra payment is made.

From certificates to business licenses, many citizens experience corruption at some point in their lives. Such practices damage democratic values and promote inequality. The worst affected are rural families, laborers, small traders, students, senior citizens, and middle-class taxpayers who depend on honest public services. When funds meant for education, healthcare, housing, and infrastructure are misused, development slows down and social trust breaks. Fighting corruption is therefore not only a legal battle but a moral mission to protect equality, opportunity, and national progress.

Role of Society and Citizens

A corruption-free society cannot be achieved by laws alone. Citizens must actively reject dishonest practices and choose integrity even when shortcuts seem easier. Reporting corruption, supporting transparency campaigns, and spreading awareness among youth can build a culture of honesty. Educational institutions can play a key role by teaching ethics, responsibility, and civic values etc.

Impact of Technology in Fighting Corruption

Technology has transformed equation by improving efficiency and transparency. Online portals for certificates, tax filing, railway bookings, and public grievances reduce face-to-face interactions that often led to bribery. Real-time tracking systems ensure accountability and timely service delivery.

Digital payment platforms, UPI transactions, and cashless services reduce illegal cash handling and improve financial monitoring. Like e-marketplaces and e-tendering platforms promote fair competition and prevent favoritism in public contracts. Mobile applications and digital complaint systems enable citizens to report issues easily and safely.

Nevertheless, digital awareness, cyber safety, and reliable internet access are necessary to ensure technology benefits everyone equally.

Conclusion: Our Responsibility for a Corruption-Free Nation

"A nation becomes strong when its people choose truth over convenience."

Eliminating corruption requires courage, consistency, and commitment from every citizen. Every honest action—whether refusing a bribe, demanding transparency, or educating others—contributes to national integrity. A transparent system creates better healthcare

Transparency and Accountability: Pillars of a Corruption-Free Society

Shri Biswajit Kanungo
Secretary, PR,
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee, Odisha

“ CORRUPTION BECAME RELIGION & DISHONESTY BECAME THE MORALITY OF THE PEOPLE “

Sj. Khageswar Mohapatra - Educationist with Eminent Personality.

Corruption is not merely a legal violation; it is a moral failure that weakens institutions, damages trust, and slows national development. When transparency disappears and accountability weakens, corruption finds fertile ground to grow. A society that wishes to progress must strengthen these two pillars, for they form the foundation of clean governance and ethical public life.

Citizens also share responsibility in fighting corruption. Refusing to pay bribes, reporting misconduct, demanding transparency, and supporting ethical leadership are powerful acts of resistance. Silence and acceptance only strengthen corrupt systems. When people insist on fairness and honesty, institutions are forced to respond and reform.

A corruption-free society is not built overnight. It requires continuous reform, moral courage, strong institutions, and active citizen participation. Transparency and accountability must become habits, not just policies. When governance becomes open and leadership becomes responsible, corruption loses its power.

“ Where transparency lives, corruption dies.”

Collective Resolve to Fight Dishonest Practices and Corruption

Mrs. Jyoti Rao

Corruption remains one of the gravest threats to the moral, social, and economic foundation of our nation. It is not merely an administrative lapse, but a deeply rooted social challenge that emerges from dishonest practices silently tolerated in everyday life. If corruption is to be eradicated, it must be confronted at its very roots—openly, firmly, and collectively.

Dishonest practices such as misuse of authority, favoritism, manipulation of systems, falsification of records, unethical conduct, and deliberate silence in the face of wrongdoing serve as breeding grounds for corruption. When these practices go unchecked, they weaken public trust, erode democratic values, and deprive citizens of justice, equality, and dignity. Education, awareness, and moral courage are among the most powerful tools in this struggle. Citizens must be empowered with knowledge of their rights and duties, and encouraged to resist, report, and reject corrupt practices.

Let us collectively take a firm pledge to reject dishonest practices, refuse unethical shortcuts, and stand united against injustice. Every honest action strengthens our nation, and every courageous voice brings us closer to a corruption-free society.

Corruption is one of the most serious issues faced by the society today. It is a poison which has been spread in the mind of wrong people of the society, community and country. It is the mistreatment of public resources just for getting some advantages to fulfill little unfair wish.

It explores how misuse of power for personal gain (bribery, embezzlement) harms society, hindering development eroding trust, and argues for solutions like promoting transparency, enforcing strict laws, fostering ethical education empowering whistleblowers, and increasing accountability through technology and citizen action to build fairer, more prosperous nations.

The vital courses include greed, weak administration, and lack of transparency, property, influence, and inefficient systems etc.

Consequences: It leads to economic losses, increased inequality, underdevelopment, and a breakdown of public trust in institutions.

So, it states that fighting corruption is vital for achieving social justice, better living standards, and true patriotism by creating environments of integrity and equal opportunity for all.

Legal & Enforcement: Strong anti corruption bodies like ACBs, Swift, unbiased investigations and severe punishments.

Minimising Corruption: Upholding Ethical Foundations of Society

“The Constitution of country envisions governance founded on justice, equality, and integrity—values that leave no room for corruption.”

Ms. Jayashree Dash, (Adv.)
Joint Secretary (Legal)
Anti Corruption Intelligence Committee, Odisha

Corruption is not merely a procedural lapse; it is a moral erosion that weakens institutional credibility and public confidence. Its presence disrupts fairness, delays justice, and undermines the values upon which a civilised society rests. Minimising corruption, therefore, demands a conscious and collective reaffirmation of ethical principles rather than the assignment of blame.

Transparency in systems plays a pivotal role. Clear procedures, simplified processes, and the increasing use of technology reduce ambiguity and discretion, thereby limiting opportunities for unethical conduct. Equally essential is accountability—effective oversight mechanisms, prompt grievance redressal, and internal vigilance ensure that deviations are addressed in a timely manner.

Public awareness further strengthens this effort. An informed and vigilant society that refuses to normalise unethical practices fosters an environment of zero tolerance towards corruption. Ultimately, minimising corruption is a shared responsibility, achievable through ethical commitment, transparent systems, and collective resolve to uphold fairness, trust, and justice.

Fighting Dishonest Practices Against Corruption

“Integrity and honesty are the pillars of a just society.”

Corruption is a bad habit that harms our country. It happens when people do wrong things like taking bribes, cheating, or using power for their own benefit. Corruption creates unfairness and stops our nation from growing properly.

“Honesty is the best policy.”

The best way to fight corruption is to be honest and truthful in our daily life. Honesty means doing the right thing even when no one is watching. When people follow rules and behave well, society becomes better and safer.

Students play an important role in making a corruption-free Nation, when we study sincerely, do not cheat in exams, and respect our teachers and elders, we learn good values. These values help us become good citizens in the future.

Small good actions like following rules, returning lost things, and standing against wrong deeds make a big difference. We should always have the courage to say “no” to bad habits.

If everyone practices honesty and goodness, corruption will slowly disappear. Fighting corruption is our responsibility to build a bright and happy future.

“A strong nation is built on honesty and truth.”

Strong Administration, Technology, and Accountability as Weapons Against Corruption

Shri Subrat Ku. Choudhury
Social Entrepreneur,
Odisha, Bhubaneswar

To effectively fight corruption and dishonest practices, strong governance systems and modern technology are essential. Where procedures are complicated, opaque, and slow, corruption easily grows. Therefore, simplification of rules, digitalization of services, and transparent decision-making reduce the opportunities for manipulation.

E-governance, online payment systems, digital land records, direct benefit transfers, and online tendering systems eliminate middlemen and reduce human interference. Technology creates digital footprints, making it difficult to hide illegal transactions. Public dashboards displaying government budgets, expenditures, and welfare scheme beneficiaries help citizens monitor how money is used.

Another crucial tool is whistle-blower protection. Many people are aware of corruption but remain silent due to fear of retaliation or job loss. When the law protects whistle-blowers and ensures anonymity, more people will come forward to report dishonest practices. Fast-track courts should handle corruption cases so that punishment is quick, visible, and exemplary. Delayed justice encourages further wrongdoing.

Corporate transparency is equally important. Businesses must follow ethical practices, avoid black money, and implement corporate social responsibility with honesty rather than as a formality. When both the governance and private sector work ethically, public trust increases, and corruption loses space.

Fighting Dishonest Practices Against Corruption

Reeteish Mohanty
Vice President : Thane
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee

Corruption is one of the greatest challenges facing societies today. It weakens institutions, erodes public trust, and hinders economic and social development.

Fighting dishonest practices against corruption is therefore essential for building a just, transparent, and prosperous society.

Dishonest practices such as bribery, fraud, favoritism, and misuse of power undermine the rule of law.

They divert resources meant for public welfare into private hands, leaving citizens deprived of basic services like education, healthcare, and infrastructure. When corruption becomes normalized, it creates inequality and discourages honest individuals from participating fully in civic and economic life.

The fight against corruption begins with strong ethical values. Integrity, honesty, and accountability must be promoted at every level—individual, institutional, and national.

Governments play a critical role by enforcing clear laws, strengthening anti-corruption agencies, and ensuring that offenders are held accountable without bias.

Transparency in decision-making, public spending, and governance processes reduces opportunities for dishonest behavior.

Equally important is the role of citizens. Public awareness, education, and active participation empower people to resist corruption and report unethical practices.

Media and civil society organizations act as watchdogs, exposing wrongdoing and demanding reform. Whistleblower protection is vital to encourage individuals to speak out without fear of retaliation. Technology also offers powerful tools in combating corruption.

Digital records, online services, and open data initiatives reduce human interference and increase transparency.

Ultimately, fighting dishonest practices against corruption requires collective effort. When individuals choose integrity over personal gain and institutions uphold justice, society moves closer to fairness, trust, and sustainable development.

Transparency and Integrity in Public Life

Shri Dwarika Nath Satapathy
Zonal President, Bhubaneswar ACIC.

Transparency and integrity are the foundation of a strong and responsible society. When systems function openly and honestly, public trust grows, and governance becomes more effective. Clear rules, ethical conduct, and accountability help reduce corruption and ensure fairness in administration.

Corruption weakens institutions and delays any kind of development. In contrast, integrity promotes justice, equality, and responsible leadership. A transparent system encourages citizen participation and strengthens democracy.

By upholding truth and moral values in daily life, society can move towards sustainable growth and lasting peace. Transparency and integrity together create a cleaner, stronger, and more progressive nation.

Corruption as a Social Disease and the Need for Ethical Awakening

Mr. Priyadarshan Mohapatra
Jt. Secretary
Anti Corruption Intelligence
Committee, Odisha

Corruption is not merely an administrative problem; it is a deep social disease that weakens the foundation of development, justice, and democracy. It appears in many forms—bribery, fraud, favoritism, misuse of power, false documents, tax evasion, and manipulation of rules. While laws exist in every country, corruption survives because dishonest practices are silently accepted and sometimes encouraged in daily life.

The fight against corruption must begin with ethical awakening. Children learn values from family, teachers, and society. If they witness cheating in exams, paying bribes for jobs, or manipulating systems to get unfair benefits, they begin to believe that dishonesty is the “normal way” to succeed. Therefore, value-based education is as important as economic reforms. Schools must teach integrity, honesty, respect for public property, and social responsibility through real-life examples and community activities.

Religious institutions, social organizations, and cultural platforms can also promote messages on moral living and clean public life. Media has a key role in exposing scams and praising honest officials and citizens. When honest behavior is publicly appreciated, people feel motivated to follow it.

Ultimately, corruption will fall not only when strong laws exist, but when society refuses to tolerate dishonesty. Every citizen must decide not to pay or take bribes, not to cheat in small matters, and not to misuse public resources. The true victory against corruption begins in the human mind—with conscience, courage, and commitment to truth.
